AFFIDAVIT OF CONVEYANCE OF TITLE

- 1) Notice to all, Wherefore I, :Fred-Francis: of the FRINK Estate, sojourning at in the SUPERIOR COURT, in the Corporate county of KING, in the Corporate State know as WASHINGTON, and IN THE Corporate UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE Corporate State know as WESTERN DISTRICT OF WASHINGTON do declare to ALL Court's, to assign under order, my "power of contract," or "Title", otherwise known as my "power of attorney."
- 2) Wherefore, if we abandon the term "chose in action" and also disapprove of the ~~expression~~ "assignment of contract," it is nevertheless necessary to explain what it is that we "assign" and what we do when we assign it. The term "assignment" is used in the law of property as well as in the law of contract; indeed, it may be said to have application only in cases involving property, for contract rights are "property" as that term is used by the courts. The term has much the same usage as have the terms "alienation," "conveyance," and "transfer." The assignment of contract rights are purely contractual relations between two parties.
- 3) Even in the days when the transfer of a contract right was regarded as impossible, and an attempted assignment was therefore regarded as a "power of attorney," the assignee was not in any proper sense an "agent" of the assignor. In attempting to enforce the claim, he was not acting for the benefit of the assignor but for his own benefit; he had not undertaken to follow, nor was he bound to follow, the directions of the assignor. The "power of attorney" theory was used only in order to surmount the difficulties created by the erroneous notion of impossibility of transfer; and having served this purpose, it receded into the background and was not allowed to carry the assignee into the field of agency.
- 4) Contract rights are assignable. They are rights in personam, as opposed to rights in rem; they are rights to conduct by specified individuals and not manifold rights to conduct by all other persons (rights against "all the world").
- 5) A more exact and specific analysis of rights would bring us to "Title." Title consists of rights, powers, privileges, and immunities, defining these terms so that they are mutually exclusive. It is these legal relations that are transferred or conveyed or aliened. And alienation or transfer or conveyance of "title" is the substitution of a new party to some or all of the legal relations of which "title" consists. The grantor extinguishes his relations with others respecting the subject matter and creates similar relations between grantee and others. If the grantor had rights (in rem) that other persons shall not trespass, the grantee now has such rights. If the grantor was legally privileged against others to use or abuse, the grantee now has such privileges. If the grantor had the power of alienation, the grantee now has such power. In such cases, both parties now have "title," or a part of the "title."

- 6) Alienation, conveyance, and transfer, therefore consist of some operative action that extinguishes and creates, that substitutes a new party as the focus of legal relations with respect to the subject matter. Such also is an "assignment" in the law of contracts.
- 7) Corbin, Restatement, Contracts, § 149, defines assignment in this way: "An assignment of a right is a manifestation to another person by the owner of the right indicating his intent to transfer, without further action or manifestation of intention, the right to such person or to a third person." The terms "assignor," "assignee," "sub-assignee," and "assignment for value" are also there defined.
- 8) An assignment is not a mere power of attorney even though the assignee undertakes to collect and pay over the proceeds to the assignor, and even though the assignee is expressly given a power of attorney to maintain suit. Titus v. Wallick, 59 S. Ct. 557, 306 U.S. 282, 83 L.Ed. 653 (1939)
- 9) The American Law Institute defines an "Effective Assignment," in Corbin, Restatement, Contracts, §150 as follows: "An effective assignment is one by which the assignor's right to performance by the obligor is extinguished and the assignee acquires a right to such performance."
- 10) Therefore, I :Fred-Francis: of the FRINK Estate, Grantor, do put my hand today April __/__/2012, willingly and knowingly, to convey my Title to :Mark-Edward:Hill Private minister of justice, Grantee, in order that he may act in my own best interest, in representation before this Court and all courts for the following Cases: _____ any future state of federal case pending.
